BIOGRAPHY:

She has been called a glass of champagne, cool, refreshing, and a little bubbly. A late blooming artist who came to jazz singing in mid-life, she earned national attention with her stellar 2011 debut release Everytime We Say Goodbye. She's been working steadily around the Bay Area over the past decade, she and her daughter relocated to Paris in the fall of 2013 putting her prolific career as a voice-over artist of considerable celebrity on hold. She is the voice of Princess Leia in LeapFrog's Star Wars game and the characters Soraka and Kayle in Riot Games' hugely popular online game League of Legends.

Living and creating on two continents, America and France, with her French quartet, La Belle Epoque, it is not always easy, but they have melded together their talents to create some dazzling and exquisite music. Jazz Journalist Andrew Gilbert said of their inaugural album, "It's an album for blissful late-night listening that leaves you wondering what the next day has to offer"

The title track of the quartet's 2016 release, Long After Midnight, charted for three weeks on the U.S. FMQB Top 40 Charts, and remained in the Top 5 slot for seven weeks on the CMJ Jazz charts. Lisa Lindsley & La Belle Epoque will tour parts of the western the U.S. and Europe, fall of 2017. They are scheduled to record their next project in France in October.

Lindsley resides most of the time in the San Francisco/Bay Area with her own band Lisa Lindsley & her Tiny Little Trio. She performs with La Belle Epoque whenever she can. Lisa's third album, Wouldn't It Be Lovely? is due out August 25, 2017.
